'Rebel' upbraids misbehaving corporations in ABC drama series

Annie "Rebel" Bello is the kind of woman you want on your side in a street fight.

As played by Katey Sagal ("The Conners") in the ABC drama series "Rebel," premiering Thursday, April 8, she's a brilliant blue-collar legal advocate who drives a pickup truck and fights passionately for causes she believes in. She'll also do almost anything to make sure she gets those she helps their due, such as confronting CEOs of irresponsible corporations at stockholder meetings.

While husband Grady (John Corbett, "Northern Exposure") admires her zeal and daughter Cassidy (Lex Scott Davis, "Training Day") has inherited it, her tendencies can prove exasperating for associates such as Julian Cruz (Andy Garcia, "City Island," in his first role as a series regular), the powerful attorney with whom Rebel consults, and ex-husband Benji Ray (James Lesure, "Las Vegas"), a corporate lawyer and natural adversary for her.

The series was created and executive produced by Krista Vernoff ("Grey's Anatomy," "Station 19") and is based on the life of activist Erin Brockovich, who is also an executive producer here.

Sagal, whose long resume runs the gamut from comedy ("Married ... With Children," "8 Simple Rules") to drama ("Sons of Anarchy," "Boston Legal"), was attracted to the series for its blend of those elements and for the bold, don't-take-no-for-an-answer nature of Rebel, whose lack of a law degree the actress says gives her character license to pull outrageous stunts.

"I think what I love so much about Rebel is she can cross a few lines," Sagal says. "She can go outside the box. She can push where maybe I guess it wouldn't be within legal bounds. I mean, not that she's illegal, but she just pushes a little bit further.

"And I think that she takes the best," she continues. "To me it feels like she gathers knowledge from everywhere. I mean, she just takes it all. And then her primary purpose is to do the right thing, is to fight for the right thing. And I think sometimes legal mumbo jumbo can make that a little bit confusing when it's actually a very straight line in terms of what's right."

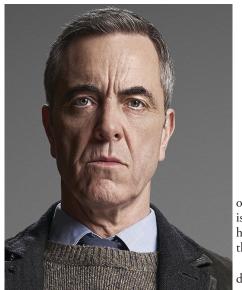

In preparing for the role, Sagal decided to meet Brockovich for lunch, not so much to talk about the nuts and bolts of advocacy but to pick up on her energy.

"I got it just sitting and hanging out with her," Sagal says, "because clearly the passion and the fire comes even over lunch."

Brockovich, whose career as an environmental activist was brought to life by Julia Roberts in director Stephen Soderbergh's 2000 legal drama "Erin Brockovich," thinks her doppelganger got the performance right.

"It's her energy. It's her presence ... ," Brockovich says. "It's like, 'I'm a badass.' She's it. She gets it. So it's just there."

Checking in with

James Nesbitt may live in London but his heart still belongs to Northern Ireland. Indeed, the 56-year-old star of "Bloodlands," a four-part Irish thriller currently streaming on Acorn TV, is a native of County Antrim, belongs to Royal Portrush Golf Club (which is one of the host venues of the British Open) and does charity work for a nonprofit that helps people traumatized by The Troubles, the 30 years of sectarian violence that plagued that country in the late 20th century.

Which is why the series' portrayal of Belfast and surrounds as they are today was a big draw for him

"(Viewers are) going to see Belfast in a kind of a new, cosmopolitan, post-conflicts, vibrant, sophisticated, diverse place ...," the actor explains. "I am very keen that people, not just in Northern Ireland but globally, get to see the beauty and the majesty of it but also try and understand the complex past of it and to see how important and fragile the peace is. So the responsibility to kind of tackle The Troubles or the legacy of The Troubles even in a fictionalized drama is something I wear quite proudly and carefully. So that was the job to undertake."

In "Bloodlands," Nesbitt plays Tom Brannick, a veteran Northern Ireland police investigator who sees a connection between a current case and an infamous one from 20 years ago that is linked to a still-at-large assassin, the disappearance of his wife and Northern Ireland's dark history. The role was a grueling one for Nesbitt, requiring him to work bad hours in bad weather and play painful scenes, such as one where Tom has a meltdown at the site of a shallow grave where he thinks his wife may be buried.

Naturally, Nesbitt needed a coming-down period after filming wrapped.

'You can't help but get involved in these characters and I lived with Tom for quite a while. But I feel for him and I felt for him that day," he says with a laugh.

Sipping with the stars: Highly rated, celebrity-branded wines

If you're looking for a nice syrah to pair with dinner or just a light pinot grigio to enjoy with an intimate gathering, we have a few famous friends who can offer recommendations.

Indeed, these are celebrities who have turned their love of wine into a business and putting their names and/or money where their incredibly discriminating palates are. And while some are better than others, many are worth your time and hard-earned cash. The following are a few to consider.

Jim Nantz, who this week calls the Masters Tournament for CBS, has been making wine with his partner Peter Deutsch since 2009 and the result is The Calling (www.thecallingwine.com) of Sonoma Valley, Calif., which produces high-quality cabernet, chardonnay and pinot noir with prices ranging from $32 to $70. In fact, its 2014 Fox Den Vineyard pinot was a favorite of Wine Enthusiast, which rated it a 91.

The Francis Ford Coppola Winery (www.francisfordcoppolawinery.com) of Napa Valley, Calif., has developed a loyal following over the years with its myriad varieties of wines and its Sofia sub-brand that has also made inroads. Some have movie themes (the Apocalypse Now red blend; the Director's Cut line) while others are named for family members (the Eleanor red after his wife; Sofia for his fellow filmmaker daughter) and prices range from $12 to $120. Stars include the 2017 Sofia Blanc de Blancs and a 2014 Black Label Claret Diamond cabernet sauvignon, which Wine Enthusiast gave a 90.

Washington State native Kyle MacLachlan also has a passion for the grape as owner and vintner of Pursued by Bear wines (www. pursuedbybearwine.com) of Columbia Valley, Wash., which produces small-lot reds and a rosé of which they're particularly proud. Its cabernet sauvignon has gotten much attention, with Wine Enthusiast giving its 2012 vintage a 93. Prices are $60-70.

While they were married, Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie enjoyed a shared love of wine and in 2011 they bought a French estate in Provence and created Chateau Miraval (www.miraval.com), which specializes in rosés. In fact, its Cotes de Provence rosé was named one of the top 100 wines in the world by Wine Spectator in 2012. Since sales are mainly to restaurants, prices are not listed on its website.

And if you're looking to blow a little money, look no further than Armand de Brignac (armanddebrignac.com), a partnership between rapper Jay-Z and Moet Hennessy. Its champagnes are decidedly high end with prices starting at $200 and its star being the Brut Gold, which clocks in at around $299 and a 93 rating from Wine Spectator in 2016.

McIlroy seeks to break through - finally - at Augusta National Hard as it may be to believe, Rory McIlroy has never won a Masters Tournament. Indeed, while the 31-year-old native of Northern Ireland has four major championships and a slew of other accolates to his credit, the coveted green jacket that goes to the winner of the golf year's traditional first major is not among them. And he's ready to complete that career grand slam.

He's finished in the top 10 in six of his last seven outings at Augusta National, with career bests of a fourth-place finish in 2015 and ties for fifth in 2018 and last year. True, he also had a disheartening final round collapse in 2011, which relegated him to 15th after building a four-stroke lead after 56 holes. But that shouldn't take away from his more recent stellar play on the florid Georgia course.

History says the first round is McIlroy's undoing at Augusta National and that certainly held true last year as he opened the tournament with a 3-over 75. He then identified a flaw in his swing and came back to shoot a 66 and 67 in the second and third. But by the time the fourth round started, it was too late. His 69 on the last 18 holes was nowhere near enough to overcome a record-setting performance by Dustin Johnson, who shot a 20-under 268 over 72 holes to win by five strokes, nine ahead of McIlroy.

So it seems if McIlroy can avoid the first-round yips, a title at Augusta can be his.

He also hopes the number 13 will prove lucky this year as he goes against the PGA's top players in his 13th career start in the Masters Tournament, which airs Thursday through Sunday, April 8-11, on ESPN and CBS.

BY JAY BOBBIN

Christopher Meloni

OF 'LAW & ORDER: ORGANIZED CRIME' ON NBC

Before resuming the role, did you have any thoughts about how Elliot Stabler's life would have progressed between "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" and "Law & Order: Organized Crime"?

I did, and it actually dovetailed pretty closely to what (the new show's writers and producers decided), just with a different route in getting there.

Having been on shows such as "Veep," "True Blood" and "The Handmaid's Tale" during the last decade, do you look back on your professional years after "Special Victims Unit" with satisfaction?

It's great to be back (as Stabler), but I never had one bit of regret in the intervening years. With almost every job I took, I thought to myself, "This is why I left 'SVU.' I wanted to tell this kind of story, or I wanted to have this kind of experience." I've had a very happy, fun, fulfilling 10 years. I ran around the world and worked on things I wanted to work on, and now, I'm back.

I fondly look back on all the different people I've worked with and all the stories told. I got to work on this show called "Happy," which was just this outlandish, "Who Framed Roger Rabbit"-esque thing, but a little darker. We brought a graphic novel to life, and what an experience. And before that, I did "42" – the Jackie Robinson story – and I remember walking around thinking, "This is something important and meaningful." That really meant so much to me.

And as for doing a Superman movie ("Man of Steel"), I'd never been in the belly of the beast of a quarter-billion-dollar movie before. And there I was, going, "Oh, so this is how it's done. This is what it takes." I've walked through it all very satisfied.

BY JAY BOBBIN

Sandra Bullock and Hugh Grant give 'Two Weeks Notice,' enjoyably

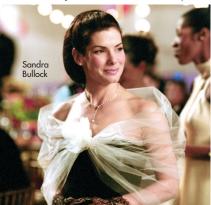

In considering star power, it only makes sense that the power will be enhanced if a movie boasts more than

That's especially welcome in a romantic comedy, as affirmed by the engaging teaming of Sandra Bullock and Hugh Grant in "Two Weeks Notice," currently streaming on Netflix. Writer-director Marc Lawrence's tale feels so fresh, it's hard to believe it's almost 20 years old now (released in 2002), but that attests to the ongoing popularity of its two leads.

Grant plays a New York real-estate developer and committed playboy who's quite set in his ways when he crosses paths with an attorney (Bullock) unhappy about his intention to raze a community center for one of his projects. As angry as she is about his plans, he's sufficiently impressed with her to hire her as his new chief counsel, a job she accepts with some reservations.

Those prove to be warranted, since he wants and needs much more than her legal expertise: He basically asks her to be his constant social adviser, even consulting her on which necktie he should wear. With her Type A personality, she doesn't have much patience for the role in which she's been cast ... and she ultimately gives, as the film's title infers, her two weeks' notice.

The story doesn't end there, however, since Grant's character pulls every string he has – and he has a lot of them at his disposal - to make sure the lawyer isn't hired elsewhere. They reach an accord and she agrees to help him find a suitable replacement for her: Alicia Witt plays the candidate eventually chosen by the smitten Grant, though Bullock doesn't think she has the necessary experience.

It's not hard to guess how this ends up, but getting there is plenty of fun. The stars also get terrific support from Robert Klein and Dana Ivey as Bullock's parents, and several real-life New York staples of the time make cameo appearances as themselves.

The heavy lifting clearly falls to Bullock and Grant, though, and the opposites-attract nature of their personalities makes for pure pleasure in a script clearly designed for them. Filmmaker Lawrence had worked with Bullock on "Forces of Nature" and "Miss Congeniality" previously, so he knew how to tailor a role to her, and he obviously versed himself well on Grant's rom-com canon

If you're a Sandra Bullock fan or a Hugh Grant fan, "Two Weeks Notice" is sure to satisfy you, And if you're a fan of both, even better.

OF TURNER CLASSIC MOVIES MONDAYS AND SATURDAYS

Since this year's "31 Days of Oscar" festival offers the included films in alphabetical order, what do you think of pairings like your upcoming one with "Mighty Joe Young" followed by "Mildred Pierce"?

That's what we call a pivot. "We'll now be switching gears for a very different kind of film" We're doing a lot of that in the month of April, but that's the fun of it. The TCM programmers do such a great job month-in, month-out in figuring out ways to group films and theme them, and April is just this grab-bag of films that have nothing in common, except that they're near each other alphabetically and they've either won or been nominated for Oscars.

Are there any "31 Days of Oscar" titles that you particularly wanted to introduce this time?

I love it when we get the premiere movies that we've never shown before on TCM, and there are so many of those in April, like "Carol" and "Nebraska" and the version of "The End of the Affair" with Julianne Moore and Ralph Fiennes. I'm a little disappointed I didn't get any of those, but I'll be watching them.

One thing that I find interesting in looking at the whole month is that so many of (the films) have ties to movies that are in the Oscar conversation this year. You have "Mank," and we're showing "Citizen Kane" (which was co-written by Herman J. Mankiewicz, the subject of "Mank"). You have "The Trial of the Chicago 7," and we're showing "Inherit the Wind," which Aaron Sorkin (the writer-director of "Chicago 7") told me is one of his favorite courtroom dramas.

InFocus

"Secrets of the Whales" (Disney+ — series premiere, April 22)

"Breaking Bobby Bones" (National Geographic — series premiere, May 31)
Bobby Bones ("American Idol," "Dancing With the Stars") travels to various destinations to meet everyday heroes who teach him their line of work and also tell their stories of triumph and tragedy in how they got to where they are today. Viewers will get to see such unique jobs and hobbies as stunt artist, kayaking the Colorado River blindfolded and playing para hockey on a sled.

Four familiar actors recall 'My Grandparents' War' on PBS

While they are massive events, to those directly impacted, wars also are deeply personal.

Several well-known British actors trace their ancestors' World War II experiences in "My Grandparents' War," a four-part PBS documentary series debuting Sunday, April 4, then continuing on subsequent Sundays. In the premiere, Helena Bonham Carter ("The Crown") reveals how her French and English grandparents were literal life-savers; later episodes feature Oscar winner Mark Rylance ("Bridge of Spies"), Kristin Scott Thomas ("Four Weddings and a Funeral") and Carey Mulligan ("Promising Young Woman").

"It was a certain gift, this job," Bonham Carter reflects, "because it was something I always felt that I needed to do myself. And I'd strongly encourage, having done it, everyone (to) go pursue what their grandparents did ... whether they were part of a war or not. It was explaining part of my own self to myself. We carry our grandparents and what they did somewhere inside us, and they have a lot to teach us."

Rylance agrees, adding that his "My Grandparents' War" mission was made more special by a fellow traveler: "I asked if I could bring my father with me, and though he only appears for a moment in the film, he was there with me at every occasion. We were able to weep together and laugh together and talk together during the whole thing. Who wouldn't like that kind of experience? It was very, very rich.'

Executive producer Tom Anstiss reasons, "The strength of the series is that Mark, Helena, Kristin, and Carey all address unique aspects of World War II. And it's a combination of not just family history, but social history and political history. Their grandparents' stories become the prism, if you like, from which they explore untold stories of World War II."

In fact, Rylance says he hopes "My Grandparents' War" will continue beyond one season, and with "people who are not celebrities like us, but just 'normal' people who have wonderful connections with their grandparents. I think it could be a very far-reaching series for PBS, and very, very fascinating for people."

How CBS landed Oprah's Harry-and-Meghan interview

Q: It seems that Oprah Winfrey has lots of television deals that don't involve CBS. How did it get her interview with Prince Harry and Meghan Markle? -Adam Rhodes, via e-mail

A: Through old-fashioned deal-making and the right price being paid (estimated to be in the $7 million ballbark). Winfrey reportedly wanted the program to be a broadcast-network event, rather than selling it to a cable or streaming outlet. (Having it scheduled after "60 Minutes" is said to have been a factor.) That also gave CBS a leg up for the next day's "CBS This Morning," which offered footage from the interview that had not been seen in the primetime special - and, not surprisingly, boosted that morning show to a rare ratings win over rivals "Good Morning America" and "Today."

Another significant deal-sweetener was that CBS became the seller of the special to other networks internationally including England's ITV, which showed it one night after CBS did. And as other networks used clips from the show on their newscasts, the CBS name was seen virtually everywhere - also quite significant.

Q: What has happened with "Big Sky"? It seemed like it vanished again almost as soon as it returned. – Christy Scott, Bend, Ore.

A: Part of that owes to the limited number of episodes that were ordered by ABC. There were 10 initially, broken into multiple-episode arcs (which always was David E. Kelley's structural plan for the show), then six more were ordered ... so seven remain to be shown at this point.

Parceling them out this way may bode well for the future of the series, since it has kept people talking about it, not a bad thing when a network is making renewal decisions. The next return of "Big Sky" is just around the corner, since the documentary series "Soul of a Nation" – which has been in that slot since the start of March - airs its finale April 6.
